

This is the original depiction of the insulin hexamer supplied by Ely Lilly via Martin Jones to the then Honorary Secretary of ABCD, and member of the originals ABCD gang of Three, Richard Greenwood, in the late 1990's.

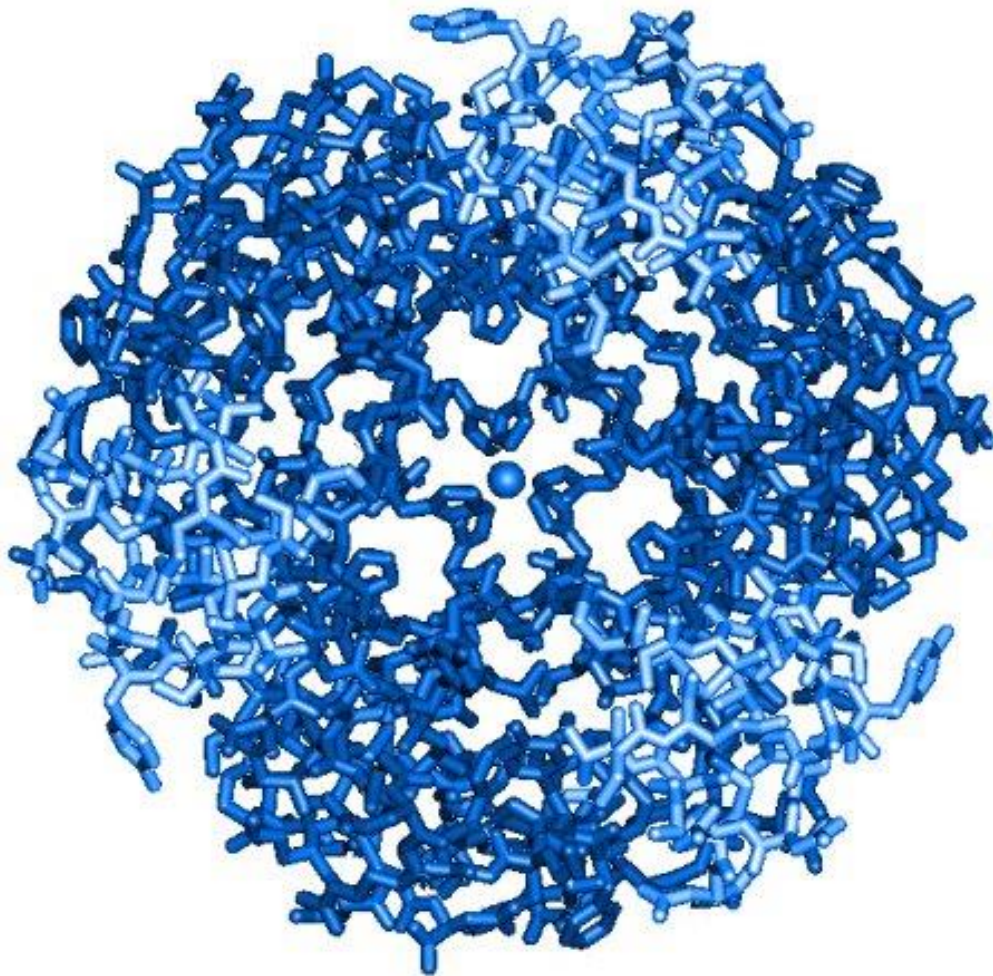

Richard had the colour changed to a more brown/orange, as above, and had the molecule was incorporated with the original ABCD logo onto the front of the folder (shown above) that was used to hold the documents for ABCD meetings from the early 2000's until 2010.

Association of British Clinical Diabetologists

In 2004 the molecule and logo were changed to shades of blue for the new ABCD “Flash” website which was launched that year and the molecule was made to twirl; it has been twirling ever since.

Association of British Clinical Diabetologists

At the end of 2020 Adobe ceased to support Flash Player and SWF files. The SWF twirling molecule was therefore converted to a GIF. It does not twirl as well as did the SWF version – but nevertheless it continues to twirl!
